New lead-free web magazine introduced to industry

Oct 24, 2003

A new lead-free resource has been introduced to the electronics assembly industry. LeadFree Magazine.com is said to be dedicated to helping companies in the transition to lead-free.

The web magazine will be delivered to subscribers' inboxes four times a year. The magazine will cover various and diverse aspects, including lead-free topics, products and testing. Additionally, LeadFree Magazine.com will explore the effects the lead-free transition will have in the manufacturing process.

LeadFree Magazine.com is produced by a consortium of the leading lead-free companies in the industry: Aqueous Technologies, Creative Automation, EPM-IBL, KIC, Kyzen, Kester, Metcal, Milara, Polyonics and Tyco Automation. Each contributing company will provide a different and individual perspective into the transition to lead-free. LeadFree Magazine will include perspectives from Europe and Asia as well. This magazine is free of charge and will have no advertising associated with it.

Subscriptions to LeadFree Magazine.com, the industry's hottest new Web resource, are currently being accepted. To subscribe, simply, visit the site (LeadFree Magazine.com) and provide your contact information.
